This year's LCF quilt (on the left) was made by the Medora Ladies. Get your quilt raffle tickets at the WCHS Museum. $1 for one or $5 for six. The Medora Ladies Aid was organized in 1907 by Rev. Ed Fintel with the following charter members: Mrs. George McIntosh, Anna Van Patten, Clara Mathews, Ethel Duncan, Olive Gripp, Mrs. Andy Reynolds and Mary Reynolds. Initially, it was neighbors visiting neighbors in their home. When a member had a quilt stretched on a frame, visiting members would help with the stitching. After one hundred and eight years, the tradition continues - only now in the church basement, upgraded from a dirt floor and wood burning stove to a fully equipped kitchen and dining hall, thanks to the

From Sept. 15, 1949 Indianola Newspaper

The Madison House, Indianola's leading hotel for many years, stood on the northeast corner of North 1st and East Boston. The date of its erection is not known. It was burned about 1895.

It was a social center as well as a hotel. Many were the parties held, and the dances in the dining room were important in the lives of many of the young blades of the town in that day.

The bus at that time, sometimes still called an omnibus, was an institution of the community. It met all trains on the Rock Island and Burlington and conveyed guests to the hotel without charge and to any part of town for a quarter. The Keeneys (Mr. A.P. Keeney was the landlord of Madison House for many years} were always good horsemen and the team that pulled the bus was a spanking team of sorrels. When they travelled they dragged the big hickory bus along the streets at a good pace.—except when it was hub deep in mud, as it was nearly every morning, Frank Keeney would stand at the end of the railroad station platform singing out: "Free bus to the Madison House; bus and baggage to all parts of the city and other depot"

Jeff Erwin, waiter and handy man was a colored (sic) man everyone liked. He was cook for the National Guard Company when it was in camp at the Warren County Fairgrounds in 1891. Jeff performed a heroic deed along about 1890. A farmer had left his wife and little girl in his buggy, which a gray team was hitched, while he went into one of the store. Something scared the team and it bolted west along the north side of the square. It started from near the northeast corner. Jeff Erwin was walking along the street about in front of where the Beymer Jewelry store is now located. He heard the clatter of hooves and the woman calling. The team was getting up good speed by that time. Jeff dashed in the street directly in front of the team, grabbed them by the bits, one in each hand, and hung on until he brought them to a stop. Jeff moved to Oma-

VIEW THE ARMY of the SOUTHWEST at LCF

Dan, Jackson (grandson), and Kristi Porter went to Knoxville in May to experience the Army of the Southwest Civil War Re-enactors in action. The men, woman, and young people immerse themselves in the Civil War era. Any question you would like to ask about the war - rations, pay, specific battles, cannon and musket operation, etc. - can be answered by many of the soldiers. We saw three or four cannons, all of which were hand assembled and look authentic. Jack was invited to pull the trigger during one demonstration. OJ Fargo extended an invitation to any man who would like to try on a uniform and join the group in action at LCF. He has a uniform that may fit. Give Dan Porter a call if you are interested. Phone number: 961-6149.

WARREN COUNTY TIDBITS

The law department of Simpson Centenary College is discontinued by a late act of the (Methodist) Conference. (The Law Department was established in 1875 and remained in operation for several years. It eventually became Drake Law) 1880 Indianola Tribune

The mail route between Carlisle Hartford and Palmyra is to be discontinued and a new route established between a station on the C.B. & Q and Indianola, the stage to run between Ford and Palmyra daily and between Palmyra and Indianola tri-weekly. George Smith, who has had the contract on the old route, gets that for the new one. October 14, 1880 Indianola Tribune

In 1890, Indianola was one of the first towns in Iowa to create a municipal electric plant. This steam plant generated electricity from coal only in the early morning and evening until midnight. They charged on the basis of the number of lamps used. In 1910 they received bids until July 11th for one 150 kilowatt direct-current, engine-type generator, and one 16 by 36 inch Corliss engine, both machines to be delivered and erected by the contractors. Ordered from C.C. Litzenberg, the city electrician. In 1911 they provided day current to customers.

Jacob B. Alter, station agent for the Rock Island Railway at Lacona, IA, became converted at a revival meeting last March and rising in church, confessed to bootlegging. A few days later he disappeared. Yesterday Alter returned to Lacona to pack his household goods. Marshall Bidwell was on the job when he arrived and brought him to Des Moines for arraignment before Commissioner McArthur. He was bound over to the grand jury.

“Duke’s Grandfather

Marion Mitchell Morrison was born at Cherry Fork, Adams County, Ohio, January 20, 1846 to James and Martha (Purdy) Morrison. The family moved to Illinois. He enlisted in Company B of the 83rd Illinois Infantry February 1864. From there he transferred to Company E of the 61st Illinois Infantry. At the Battle of Pine Bluff, Tennessee a few weeks after he entered, Marion found himself in hand-to-hand combat with Confederate troops. He took saber wounds to the chest and neck. Bullets hit his nose and top of his head. Morrison played dead for several hours and then lost consciousness for two days before crawling down to the Tennessee River, where a Union gunboat picked him up. He carried the bullet in his head and suffered from the accompanying headaches, for the rest of his life.

Marion Mitchell Morrison

He married Wealtha Chase Parson. They had a son, Clyde Leonard Morrison August 20, 1884 in Monmouth, Illinois. The family moved to White Oak Township, Warren County, Iowa where Marion farmed. Later they moved to Indianola where he served as Warren County Treasurer 1899-1901. In 1900 they built the house located at 311 East 1st. They built many beautiful things into their home. There are stained glass windows, which glow in the late afternoon sun, and there are two small round windows located in closets on the second floor that can be seen from the outside. The house was originally heated with steam radiators but later was converted to hot water heat. Marion died December 15, 1915 in Los Angeles, California. He had moved there and died in a VA Hospital. The bullet in his head from the Civil War caused him to have mental difficulties in later life.

House Morrison built. Larry McConnell lives here now.

Young Marion; brother, Robert Emmett; father, Clyde Leonard Morrison

It has been said that son, Clyde, attended Simpson College and in 1899 had become quite a football star. Looking through Simpson Zeniths from 1886-1991 it appears he was neither football player nor Simpson Student. On September 29, 1915 in Knoxville, Iowa he married Mary (Molly) Brown. Clyde worked at drugstores at Winterset, Waterloo, and Earlham. They had a son in Winterset, which they named Marion Mitchell Morrison (aka John Wayne) after Clyde’s father. Clyde and Mary had an unhappy marriage and young Marion (John Wayne) had a difficult childhood. The family moved to Los Angeles because of Clyde’s health. Clyde and Mary eventually divorced. Clyde died in 1937. Young Marion became a famous Hollywood Star.

ERASMUS HAYWORTH

Erasmus Haworth born April 17, 1855 in Belmont Township, Warren County, Iowa, to Ellwood and Matilda (Folger) Haworth. In 1866 the family moved to Cherokee County, Kansas. He attended Friend’s Academy in Galena, Kansas. Erasmus graduated from the U of Kansas in 1883 with a BS and received his MA a year later. He received his PhD from John Hopkins University. He returned to Iowa and taught at Penn College in Oskaloosa. Erasmus was appointed professor of geology and mineralogy at the U of Kansas in 1892. He organized Kansas Geological Survey in 1894 and wrote several volumes of the survey from 1896-1904. He was Kansas State Geologist from 1894 to 1915. Haworth was instrumental in finding an ample water supply for Wichita and Newton.

In May of 1903 in Dexter, Kansas a newly drilled well unleashed gas. This gas would not burn. “Dismay over the gas well’s failure spread throughout Dexter, but Erasmus Haworth, the official state geologist, was intrigued by this unusual event. Haworth, a geology faculty member at The University of Kansas in Lawrence, arranged for a large steel cylinder to be filled with the Dexter gas. Upon his return to Lawrence, Haworth discussed the gas with chemistry professor David F. McFarland, who began a routine analysis of the cylinder’s contents. The results readily gave a scientific explanation to the Dexter puzzle.

The gas contained only 15% combustible methane, which would not burn in the presence of almost 72% nonflammable nitrogen. Haworth and McFarland reported their results to Geological Society of America.” From The Discovery of Helium in Natural Gas
